Miller Fixes Apgar's M on Mortimer.

Mortimer Still Claims that Faw did the Shooting-A Complicated Case-Ten Negroes in Limbo for Complicity.

Coroner Cave summoned the jury in the Apgar case together Monday and the inquest last Tuesday was resumed. The first witness examined was John Miller, the colored "fence." His testimony puts the murder upon Mortimer instead of Fawcett. testified as follows:

THE TESTIMONY. Geo. Mortimer came to Mexico to live about Christmas. moved about two weeks ago to where I now live. Mortimer left the house late Monday night; came back just before day Tuesday. He acted troubled when he came in. I talked with him about the killing Thursday, when we went fishing. He told me he would kill some more of them. Two men arrested him in Louisiana on Decoration day and he said he would kill them, too, when he got a chance. He told me that he killed Apgar and asked what kind of a man he was. The night he was arrested he tried to get away but could not. He did not say anyone was with him but said he did it by himself and went by himself. I thought a heap of old man Apgar, and when Mortimer acted so funny I took him fishing to pump him; and the reason I did not tell till now is that he told me he would kill me if I did. I did not know he was a bad man until I pumped him the day we went fishing [Here he got mixed up and could not tell why he suspicioned Mortimer. He was
